Front Cover: EAA's historically accurate reproduction of the 1903 Wright Flyer was painstakingly built by the Wright Experience of Warrington, Virginia. It has been the centerpiece of EAA's Countdown to Kitty Hawk, presented by Ford Motor Company, and will be the Flyer used to recreate the Wright brothers first powered flight at 10:35 am on December 17, 2003. EAA digital photo by EAA Chief photographer, Jim Koepnick.

Back Cover: Resting sideways on its launching rail in the cool sunshine of a winter's day on North Carolina's Outer Banks, the 1903 Wright Flyer is ready to fly four times on December 17th. It would never fly again after that amazing day. Wright Brothers/Library of Congress digital file LC-DIG-ppprs-00615.
