COVERS

FRONT COVER: With the sun glinting off the polished valve tubes and silver painted cylinders, Doug DeVries' de Havilland Beaver shows just how nice one of aviation's workhorses can be when it is given a pampered "retirement." While no longer hauling passengers and freight for a living, its outstanding capabilities are now being used by Doug and his family and friends to explore the world. EAA photo by Bonnie Kratz, EAA photo plane flown by Bruce Moore.

BACK COVER: The Flying Pemberton Family flies, among a stable of other fascinating airplanes, this beautifully finished 450-hp Pratt & Whitney-powered Boeing Stearman 75, the Wendy May. Named for Addison Pemberton's wife, the number 419 on its cowling helps him remember when her birthday is. See the story starting on page 14. Photo by Sparky Barnes Sargent.
